

Privacy Policy

Updated: 1 July 2025

This document outlines Peoplecare's Privacy Policy. This document sets out our policy for handling the personal information we collect from current and past:

- Members and customers
- Business partners
- Related companies; and
- Contracted health service providers, including personal information for contributors of the National Health Benefits Fund Pty Ltd (Onemedifund), members of the Reserve Bank Health Society Limited (RBHS) and members of AWP Australia Pty Ltd (Allianz Care) for which Peoplecare is contracted to provide administrative services.

This policy is an important part of our compliance with the Private Health Insurance Industry Code of Conduct.

1. Privacy Laws

We comply with the requirements of the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) ("the Act"), as updated from time to time, including the Privacy Amendment (Enhancing Privacy Protection) Act 2012, and the Privacy Amendment (Notifiable Data Breaches) Act 2017, as well as other state and territory laws including the Health Records and Information Privacy Act 2002 (NSW) and relevant standards including the Payment Card Industry Data Security Standard.

The core requirements of the Act are set out in the Australian Privacy Principles ("APPs"). The APPs set out how we should collect, use, keep secure and disclose personal information. The APPs also give you the right to know what information we have about you and the right to correct it if it's wrong.

2. Application of this Policy

We're committed to complying with our obligations under privacy law, while noting that in respect of anonymity Peoplecare would be limited in what information or services it can provide. We may update this document if there's a change in the services we offer and, if this happens, we'll publish all changes on our website (peoplecare.com.au).

This policy outlines the obligations of Peoplecare to collect, use and disclose your personal information in the appropriate manner.

3. What information does Peoplecare collect?

Peoplecare collects information which is classified under the Act as 'personal information' and 'sensitive information.'

'Personal Information' is any information from which your identity can be ascertained. We only collect information that is needed to provide our services. 'Sensitive information' includes health information such as information about your health, your wishes about future provision of health services, the health service provided to you and genetic information that is collected.

Unless otherwise stated, a reference to 'personal information' includes a reference to 'sensitive information'.

Depending on our relationship with you, the types of personal information we may collect from you includes:

- Identifying information such as your name and date of birth.
- Contact information such as mailing or street address, email address, telephone contact numbers (e.g. home, work, mobile).
